(c) whether Government have conducted any survey about the economic conditions of these unfortunate widows, if so, what are the details of the survery;

(d) what steps have Government taken or propose to take to economically and socially rehabilitate the widows who are subject to penury, social isolation and deprivation;

(e) the number of widows (State-wise) who have been granted pension or other benefits; and

(f) on what consideration and at what rate the widows are granted pension and what are the details of other benefits given to them?

THE MINISTER OF WELFARE (SHRI SITARAM KESRI): (a) and (b) Age group-wise number of widows in India on according to 1981 Census is indicated in Statement I (See below). Percentage of widows in the age group of over 60 years is indicated in Statement-II (See below). The 1991 census data according to age group and marital status is under process.

(c) No, Sir. Ministry of Welfare has not conducted any survey about the economic condition of the widows. However, Central Social Welfare Board under the Department of Women and Child Development, Ministry of HRD, have conducted a survey of widows in Brindavan through the Counsellors of Family Counselling Centres run by Brij Bal Vikas Kendra, Mathura, a voluntary organisation. The survey covered 2500 widows in various Bhajan Ashrams in the following age group.

Age-Group	No. of Widows
20—40	301
40—60	979
60—80	1220
	2500

The widows are mostly from W.B., Nepal etc. The number of widows receiving pension is 131. The main source of livelihood is charity from devotees, ashrams and singing bhajans.

(d) There is no specific scheme partaining to widows that is being implemented by Ministry of Welfare. Ministry has, however, a scheme for the aged which includes both men & women. The Department of Women & Child Development also do not have specific scheme being implemented for widows. However, there are various programmes in the Department of Women & Child Development like training-cum-income generation, socio-economic programme (SEP), support to training and employment programme (STEP) which provide work to needy women in a wide variety of income generating activities both in traditional and non-traditional areas. Further, Department of Women & Child development also have support services such as working women's hostels, short stay homes, etc. for the poor, needy women and women in moral danger which includes widows.

(e) and (f) the information is being collected and would be laid on he Table of the House.
